VIEW OF JOFFRE AFTER 21 MONTHS OF DURE WAR

every telegram, every order, before signing it.

The first session of the day dispensed of questions of organization, troops required at different points, movement by rail, sanitary service, arrangements for reinforcements, all of which are decided to the smallest detail.

Diagrams of War Front.

The first part of the session is devoted to what is called the situation of the "North-east," which means the North and East of France or the Franco-Belgian front; then follows a discussion of what is called the "T. O. E.," standing for "Theatre Operations Exterior."

After about three hours consecrated to reports and the necessary orders to provide for the eventualities of the day, Joffre rises from his desk and puts on his cap, which is the signal for the departure from the general headquarters to some one of the armies at the front.

The general-in-chief and an ordnance officer get into the first car, while a second officer follows in what is called the "relief car," the third one being reserved for two secretaries who accompany Joffre on all his visits to the armies.

The general's car is known to every one in the army by the tri-colored livery with a gold fringed cravat that it carries.

Notes Trench Work.

Nothing in the construction of trenches escapes Joffre; if there is anything wrong anywhere, the officers and soldiers say, it is that very thing that the general's eye will light upon.

None of the army commanders have yet been able to satisfy Joffre on two points—the shelters for the men along the first line are never deep enough, and the barbed wire entanglements that protect the first line are never dense enough.

"It's very well, it's very well," says he generally to the colonel, shaking his hand, "but you must put up a little more barbed wire. I am going to send you more, and when you have a few men available just deepen those shelters a bit, too."

He never forgets such things; the barbed wire is always forthcoming.

and if he passes that way again and finds the shelters have not been deepened, he notices it and makes the colonel notice it.

Consults His Memorandum.

After conferring with the general of an army, visiting the quarters of the troops of passing a regiment in review, Joffre always consults his little paper, the itinerary of his round, and this is about the only thing that disturbs the equanimity of his stentor. "We are going to be at least twenty minutes late," he often says, impatiently, and this means that the man at the wheel must make up that time in order to get back into the general's good graces; he never goes too fast to suit his illustrious passenger.

Safety Valve of Army.

General Joffre has been described by some of his generals as the safety valve of the army. While he is the directing intelligence of the great machine, he is at the same time the relief for overcharged minds of subordinates.

The general-in-chief is not partial to the visits of civilians in war-time.

When the general lunches at the general headquarters, he manages to satisfy some of these innumerable demands by receiving French or foreign ministers, generals, other officers of allies, armies, or notables, at his table.

The general-in-chief returns to his work at half past eight in the evening to receive the reports of the day that have arrived in his absence, and to approve the communiques to the press, which is never transmitted to Paris without having received his approbation. The ordnance officers bring in the last telegrams and receive their orders for the morning. At 10 o'clock, after the members of his staff have all retired, the general finally, entirely alone in his work room, finishes his day's task.

A FEW LAWS THAT ARE VIOLATED EACH DAY

Here are some of the things which the city ordinance prohibits. Two Guthrie citizens seem so much utter disregard and defiance of existing rules and law that a few of the more frequently violated ordinances are here given:

1—Spitting on sidewalks, stairways and public places. 2—Loitering on streets and sidewalks. 3—Sitting on streets. 4—Throwing glass in the streets. 5—Riding bicycles on sidewalks. 6—Passing street cars at street intersections with autos or motorcycles when cars are running or discharging passengers. 7—Walking in streets except at intersections. If no sidewalk keep within six feet of curb line. 8—Crossing streets except on line. 9—Strictly prohibits following the fire department when making runs to fires. You must pull to curb lines and stand till it is positively known to be safe to proceed. 10—Running autos at a high rate of speed on city streets—this is violated every night.

IN LOCAL HIGH GET SHEEPSKINS

"Parents do a noble service to the community when with hearty co-operation they keep their children in school until they finish. The total devotion and loving service of the good teacher can never be fully paid for in money."

"School officers should be appreciated for their unselfish service and for their gratuitous work in the interest of education. Tax payers and especially those men of means who have no children of their own and who cheerfully go out and vote that they may pay of their money that our children may be educated—those men should be appreciated."

"In the life of any young person it is a grand thing to graduate from high school. That represents twelve years of good work. Four years more will secure the college degree of A. B. and seven years more will secure the Ph. D. degree or the highest academic degree. The high school diploma not only admits to colleges and professional schools but is also an excellent testimonial to the business world and in any of the more inviting walks in life."

"While we rejoice with those who graduate and our profound gratitude goes out to all who help in this good work, nevertheless we also deeply regret that so many of our children fall by the wayside and fail to finish the course. To those children who drop out we have a duty. We must do more than we have done for all the children of all the people. Ultimately, social welfare depends upon efficient production and that depends upon the right kind of education."

"Ignorance is costing society twenty times as much as society is paying for education. Increased revenues wisely expended for education will return many fold."

"The schools of Guthrie are good but more money will make them better and prove the wisest investment the city could possibly make."

"In comparison with other cities in America, Guthrie is not yet paying liberal school revenues. Guthrie is

ASK PLANKS IN PLATFORM FOR IRISH FREEDOM

WANTS CHICAGO CELTS TO PRESS NATIONAL REPUBLICAN CONVENTION ACTION

Chicago, June 1.—Demand that each of the great political parties incorporate in its platform the promise that the United States shall, if acting on the arbitration board at the close of the European war, recognize Ireland as a nation will be made by the Friends of Irish Freedom at the mass-meeting for the Dublin martyrs in the Auditorium theater.

Won Right to Recognition.

"By the deaths of these sixteen men in Dublin," said Joseph Mahoney, chairman of the organization, "Ireland has won the right to recognition in the tribunal that shall decide the fate of European nations at the close of the war. Not because of our Irish blood, but because of our American ideals, we shall present the resolutions addressed to the great national parties."

"We shall also ask for the insertion of planks insuring this country not the second greatest navy in the world, so that if we set out to become the United States of humanity we will have the power to enforce our demands."

Green fire and bands will signal the affair in the loop on Saturday night. Admission will be free, but by ticket, as the committee has been obliged to limit the attendance to those of Irish blood.

Gov. Duane and all state officials of the Irish race as well as all congressmen and county and city officials of Irish blood have been invited, rich and able and will do better things.

PROF. J. H. BOWERS, Dean of A. & M. College, Stillwater, Who Delivered the Chief Address at the Public School Exercises Wednesday Night.

"In comparison with other states Oklahoma is not yet paying liberal school revenues. Much of the large holdings of wealth in Oklahoma almost escape school tax. The state greatly needs a better system of taxes for schools so that all the wealth of the state will contribute equitably to educate all the children of the state and to educate all the children better than we are educating them now."

"In Sept. Thomas Scott, Guthrie has a true educational leader. Ask him what to do. Place larger revenues at his disposal and he will insure you such educational results as will prove the best investment you could possibly make with money—increased efficiency, social progress, moral development and a richer and happier life for all."
